| □ Your province of residence on December 31 will determine which provincial tax rate you will pay for the year. BC rates are lower than Alberta rates, at most income brackets.  | ➤ Consider stepping up your move to take advantage of a lower tax rate province or deferring your move to next year if going to a higher rate province   |
| □ Even if you can't afford to pay the income tax that you owe, you should file your tax return by the annual deadline in order to avoid any late-filing penalties  | ➤ The late filing penalty is 5% of the balance owing, plus 1% for each full month that your return is late, to a maximum of 12 months . If you have incurred late-filing penalties in any of the three preceding taxation years, your late filing penalties are doubled.   |
| □ Canada Revenue Agency (“CRA”) has severe penalties for income tax evasion for taxpayers and their advisors. There are severe penalties for repeated failure to report income. If at all possible you should submit a “voluntary disclosure” when filing any late tax forms. | ➤ Be sure that your tax planning is inside with current tax law. Claim every legally available deduction or credit and arrange your affairs to reduce your income taxes as far as legally possible. Make sure all T-slips and other income are reported each year. If you are assessed repeated non-reporting penalties and have reasons why you have missed reporting income, apply under the “Taxpayer Relief Provisions”. |
| □ You have a legal right to request adjustments for the last 3 years to your tax return. The “taxpayer relief provision” provision allows you to go back 10 years in some circumstances.   | ➤ If you have missed deductions or credits in prior years, try to re-file back as far as possible. This used to be called “fairness”, but it wasn’t necessarily fair.  |
| □ CRA is bound by law to give your situation a fair hearing and apply the relevant tax law equitably.  | ➤ If you disagree with a CRA assessment you must file a Notice of Objection within 90 days of the assessment. If CRA is delaying assessments unduly, or you have complaints about CRA staff, you can file a service complaint. Our experience is that you get very rapid responses to these formal complaints. Also, consider an application to the “Taxpayers Ombudsman”.   |

Tax Law

- CRA has the authority to review any claims for deductions or revenues that you have reported. Generally, CRA is restricted to the most recent 3 years filings. However, in some cases, they can look back up to 7 years.
- If you have not filed tax returns for a long period of time or have missed reporting income, a “voluntary disclosure” may reduce penalties.
- CRA has the ability to apply a refund from one agency towards a debt owing in another. For example, CRA can withhold a GST refund to pay for outstanding taxes, EI, child tax, or student loan.
- If you owed more than $3,000 personally in either of the two preceding tax years, CRA may require you to make instalments next taxation year. CRA charges interest if you do not make these instalments, but does not pay interest if they are unnecessary.
- Protect yourself against fraudsters claiming to be CRA. Many people have received emails or phone calls this year from someone claiming to be from CRA.
- Many tax credits are non-refundable and do not carry-forward.
- Tax rules for taxpayers leaving or coming into Canada from another country are very complex and may result in a significant tax liability.

Planning Point

- Keep good documentation of all transactions. You might consider having us review your documentation prior to sending it to CRA to ensure you have not provided potentially incriminating information that was not requested. Only send to CRA what they ask for, nothing more. Remember you are guilty until you can prove yourself innocent!!
- This is only available if CRA has not requested any filings, and you have not used a voluntary disclosure in the past. Always consider “voluntary disclosure” before filing any tax forms.
- CRA commences these collections immediately upon issuance of a Notice of Assessment. If you do not agree, you can file a Notice of Objection.
- If your taxable situation is expected to differ significantly from that estimated by CRA, your instalments can be adjusted to ensure you do not over or under install.
- CRA will never request payments by credit card, and will not send an email with a link or ask you to divulge personal or financial information.
- If possible, increase income or postpone deductions to avoid losing them. Effective for 2015, the Federal Children Tax Credit is a refundable tax credit.
- Obtain proper advice to ensure you plan your emigration or immigration from or to Canada.

Tax Law

- If you are a U.S. Citizen severe penalties exist for not filing a U.S. tax return, regardless of whether you live there or not.
- For individuals spending more than 183 days in the U.S., they may be considered a U.S. resident and may be required to file a tax return with the IRS reporting their worldwide income.
- The Federal Home Accessibility Tax Credit (new for 2016), allows a senior or an individual eligible to claim the disability amount tax credit, to claim a tax credit of 15% of up to $10,000 of expenses per year for costs incurred to improve the mobility of the person in and around their principal residence.
- If you are a volunteer fire fighter or other paid emergency service volunteer, CRA offers a $1,000 tax-free allowance to offset this income, or (for firefighters) a 15% non-refundable credit based on $3,000 amount.
- Search and Rescue Volunteers are also entitled to a 15% non-refundable credit based on an amount of $3,000.
- An adoption tax credit is available for eligible adoption expenses. The maximum will increase to $15,450 in 2016, for the completed adoption of a child under 18.
- Amounts paid for certain public transit passes for you, your spouse, or your dependent children are eligible for a tax credit.

Planning Point

- Be sure to file the FBAR and C 1040's required by the IRS. Specialized advice may be necessary as the US/Canada rules are in flux.
- Be cautious, it may be possible to fall into this US tax trap with less than 183 days. Snowbirds should consider filing a Form 8840 – Closer Connection Exemption Statement.
- Certain “supporting individuals” may also qualify. Expenses qualify if they are of an enduring nature and integral to the dwelling or certain supporting individuals. If there are two qualifying individuals in the same principal residence, the maximum is $10,000 related to that principal residence.
- Be sure that your T4 takes the tax-free allowance into account. There is no requirement to prepare a T4A for the first $1,000 of contribution.
- Don't miss this opportunity to save up to $450 in taxes.
- Allowable expenses include adoption agency fees court and legal fees foreign agency fees travel and meals.
- The passes must be “unlimited” for a period of at least 28 days. Punch cards qualify as long as they provide at least 32 one-way trips in a month.

Tax Law

- The Working Income Tax Benefit (“WITB”) refundable tax credit is available to low income taxpayers that are 19 or older in the year. A British Columbia couple can receive a refund of $1,947. If both taxpayers qualify for the disability tax credit, a couple could receive a refund of up to $3,077.
- You may apply for an advance payment of one-half of the WITB to which you are entitled for the year
- Family trusts offer individuals significant tax savings by allocating earnings to beneficiaries (such as children). This benefit is eliminated where beneficiaries are under 18.
- There is a Registered Disability Savings Plan (“RDSP”) for taxpayers eligible for the Disability Tax Credit (“DTC”). To assist, the government may provide a grant based on your contributions. A parent’s or grandparent’s RRSP can be rolled into an RDSP at their date of death.
- Beneficiaries of RDSPs with shortened life expectancies of 5 years or less can withdraw up to $10,000 per year without penalty.
- Effective January 1, 2014, if the RDSP is primarily government assisted, the maximum annual withdrawal limit will be increased.

Planning Point

- File a tax return even if you did not make more than the personal limit, as this tax credit can result in a tax refund. If you have control over your income, you can plan into this and receive a cheque from CRA or have CRA pay into your CPP for you.
- If approved, the prepayments will be made as part of your GST /HST credit payment.
- There is a cost to setting up and maintaining a family trust, so it is generally used only by higher net worth individuals, or people who have businesses that are increasing in value.
- To receive the maximum government grant of $3,500, you need to contribute $1,500 annually. If the disabled taxpayer has low-income, the government may deposit an additional bond of up to $1,000 to his/her RDSP. By putting $1,500 in you may end up with $6,000 in an account for the disabled person.
- Make sure you obtain the proper approval prior to doing this.
- There is a calculation available for these types of plans. If this applies to your situation please contact our office.

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYEE

Tax Law	Planning Point
❑ It is possible to be both a shareholder and an employee, thereby entitling numerous non-taxable allowances and benefits permitted by CRA to employees.	➤ CRA usually considers a benefit to be in the capacity of employment if other employees or others in the industry receive similar benefits.
❑ If you are required to use your vehicle, purchase supplies, or provide office space for your employment, the expenses are deductible against the employment income.	➤ Have your employer sign the T2200, TL2 or other prescribed forms so you can deduct these expenses. Also, claim-back the GST on the eligible employment expenses.
❑ Employers can pay employees a non-taxable traveling allowance (including meals and vehicle use). For 2016, the rate in B.C. is $0.54/km for the first 5,000 kilometers and $0.48/km thereafter. Also, overtime meals &amp; allowance of $17 per day are tax free to employees.	➤ If actual vehicle expenses (insurance, repairs, fuel, loan interest, etc.) exceed this rate, actual costs can be claimed. However, receipts and a mileage log must be maintained to support the claim.
❑ An employee can opt to pay CPP on income that is not covered by the CPP rules.	➤ This would include tips, casual employment or under remitted income from working for more than one employer.
❑ Employees should pay their own disability insurance premiums.	➤ When employees pay their own premiums for disability insurance, any benefits to the employee from the insurance in the future will be tax-free.
❑ There are special expense deductions provided to clergy, traveling salespeople, musicians, artists, apprentice mechanics and certain transportation employees.	➤ Consult our office if you fall into any of these professions and we will discuss the specific deductions available to you.
❑ A tradesperson is able to deduct up to $500 for amounts paid in excess of $1,146 towards the purchase of “eligible” tools required for their employment. In order to receive the full deduction, your income must exceed $1,646.	➤ The tools must be new and you must have receipts to document the purchase. Your employer must complete Form T2200.

| <input type="checkbox"/> An individual employed as an apprentice mechanic may be able to deduct their tools purchased during the year based on their apprentice employment income  | ➤ Any amounts not deductible in one year can be carried forward and used in future years.   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> If you reside in a Northern Canadian area on a permanent basis for at least six months you are eligible to claim the Northern Residents deduction.  | ➤ Be sure and claim both the residency deduction and the deduction for travel benefits if provided by an employer.  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> An employer may pay money into a retiring allowance in recognition of long service. This also includes severance packages.  | ➤ There is a limit of $3,500 per year of service up to 1996. The eligible amount of the retiring allowance can be transferred to an RRSP on a tax deferred basis and does not affect your RRSP contribution room.  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> An employer can make loans to an employee for purchasing a house, a car, or shares in the company.  | ➤ Loans must be at a prescribed rate of interest as determined by CRA. For the first quarter of 2016, this rate is 1%.   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> An employer can grant an employee a Stock Option Plan.  | ➤ The tax consequences can be deferred to the date the options are exercised (as opposed to when the option is granted).  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Employers are permitted to provide non-cash gifts totaling up to $500 annually for each arms-length employee. The employees can also receive up to $500 every 5 years as a years of service award. | ➤ Be sure and take advantage of these non-taxable awards and gifts. Beware that gift certificates are considered cash, so do not qualify.   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Depending on your employment arrangement, consider operating through a company to pay lower tax rates.  | ➤ Care must be taken so that you are not characterized as a Personal Service Corporation, which is taxed at a higher rate.  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> If you work for a Canadian company overseas for more than 6 consecutive months, 60% of the tax on the first $100,000 of income can be eliminated.  | ➤ If you are working overseas for a non-Canadian company, consider contracting through your own Canadian company, and your wages should be eligible. The overseas employment tax credit has been progressively phased out over the period from 2013 through 2016. |

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- ❑ Moving expenses are deductible against employment income earned in the new work location. If the moving expenses exceed the income in the new location in the year of move, they can be carried forward until you have income from your new work location. Both spouses can claim moving expenses.
- ❑ Moving expenses are deductible if you move 40 kms closer to your new work location (determined to be by the normal route as opposed to as the crow flies).
- ❑ Transportation employees that are required to travel away from their hometown are permitted to claim a deduction their meals. The allowance rate is $17.00/meal, calculated as 1 meal/trip for trips less than 10 hours and 3 meals/day for trips more than 12 hours.
- ❑ Generally, only 50% of meals are deductible. However, long haul truckers are eligible for an enhanced deduction of 80%.
- ❑ Some union dues or other dues may have a GST component that can be claimed back
- ❑ The maximum amount under the “Canada Employment Amount” will increase to $1,161 in 2016.

Planning Point

- Claim all amounts relating to moving expenses, including:
  - real estate commission
  - mortgage penalty on selling old home
  - costs of maintaining a vacant former residence
  - travel
  - storage costs
  - meals and lodging
  - legal services and property purchase tax on the new home
  - temporary quarters up to 15 days
- A home-based business is considered a work location, so a move of more than 40 km may qualify.
- If actual meal expenses exceed this rate, actual costs can be claimed. However, receipts must be maintained. In order to claim the allowance permitted by CRA, the employee must file form TL2 with their personal tax return.
- GST may also follow these enhanced deductible percentages. Be sure to update your bookkeeping to make sure you maximize your deductions and GST refund.
- Be sure to identify these amounts as they can be recovered on your personal income tax return.
- If possible, try to ensure all family members have at least this amount of employment income to claim this credit.
If you own your own company be sure and give all family members a T4 for this credit. It also may help with the Working Income Tax Benefit.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- ❑ Apprentices registered in the 1st or 2nd year of most trades may be eligible for a cash grant from the BC or Federal Government.
- ❑ You can request a reduction of the withholdings on your payroll cheques if you are expecting to get refunds at the end of the year because of RRSPs, alimony and maintenance deductions or other items not found on your TD1 Form.
- ❑ Employees over 55 years who are receiving pension payouts can continue to work for that employer to build additional pension benefits.
- ❑ If you have an employee between the ages of 65 and 70 who wants to stop contributing to the Canada Pension Plan (“CPP”), they must file an election form, even if they are collecting CPP.
- ❑ Self-employed individuals have more deductions than employees.

Planning Point

- The grant may be taxable to the individual, and may be included in income on their tax returns. There is a separate application for some grants. Don’t miss the deadlines!
- CRA does not pay interest on withholdings paid, so you are better to have use of the money over the year, as opposed to waiting for a large refund when you file your tax return.
- This may provide a means to structuring a phased retirement, and keep older workers in the workforce longer.
- The employee needs to fill out a CPT30 form that must be forwarded to CRA and a copy kept with the employer payroll records.
- If possible try and characterize your relationship as a contractor instead of employment/employee.

IF YOU ARE A BUSINESS OWNER

- ❑ If you or your spouse are self-employed, you have a June 15 deadline for filing tax returns, however, any taxes owing are still due on April 30. CRA may charge interest for unpaid taxes as of April 30.
  - ❑ Small business corporations benefit from a preferential tax rate of 13% on profit under $500,000, as compared to a tax rate of up to 48% for individuals.
- You may want to consider making a lump-sum instalment before April 30 to cover the estimated taxes owing if you cannot file your return by that date.
  - Therefore you can pay down debt or accumulate assets 34% faster by using a company.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law	Planning Point
□ If your company has taxable income below $500,000, it may qualify for quarterly corporate tax instalments.	➤ You might consider continuing with monthly instalments so that cash flows stay more manageable and there is less likelihood of forgetting a payment.
□ A loan by a corporation to a shareholder may result in a deemed taxable benefit.	➤ Care must be taken in the timing of salary or dividend payments to clear shareholder loans.
□ The penalty for late filing T4 and T5 returns is approximately $10 per day.	➤ It may be beneficial to pay a small penalty to CRA to do some “retroactive” tax planning.
□ On April 1, 2013 BC returned to charging GST at a rate of 5% (previously HST at 12%)	➤ Consider using the “quick method” of calculating GST. It may result in paying less GST than using the regular method.
□ On April 1, 2013 BC returned to a provincial sales tax (PST system)	➤ PST is a retail sales tax that applies when a taxable good is acquired for personal or business use, unless a specific exemption applies.  ➤ If your sales are over $10,000 per year or you operate from a commercial premises you may need to reregister for a PST account, if you have not already done so.
□ PST has a number of different tax rates for different industries. Make sure you are registered under the right industry.	➤ Please contact our office if you have any questions or you can also visit www.gov.bc.ca/PST for more information.
□ There are generally 3 reasons to incorporate a business: - You want to limit your personal exposure to lawsuits - You have excess cash and want to pay lower tax, or - You intend to sell the business or transition it to your children.	➤ Each of these reasons must be examined in relation to your current situation and your expectations for the future. There are additional costs to having an incorporated business, so it is important to ensure the benefits will outweigh these costs.
If your company has a significant interest in a partnership the Tax Deferral opportunities have been eliminated.	➤ Ensure your corporations and partnerships have the same year end to avoid “phantom income”.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- Goodwill sales in a corporation are currently taxed at a very low rate (about 6.5% (half of 13%)).
- In the 2014 Federal Budget, the government proposed to “simplify” the rules for the taxation of goodwill. This would be achieved by altering how goodwill is taxed to match other depreciable assets, such as buildings. This could increase the tax rate on the gain on sale of goodwill from 6.5% to 23% and cause Alternative Minimum Taxes. Draft legislation with the proposed new changes are expected before the release of the 2016 budget
- The portion of expenses that relate to personal use (i.e. inventory that you consume personally) is not deductible by the business.
- 50% of meals and entertainment expenses are deductible.
- Leasing equipment is an alternative to purchasing, and the lease payments are 100% deductible.
- If your worksite is more than 80km from the nearest urban center of at least 1,000 people, meals are 100% deductible. GST input tax credits also follow this rule.

Planning Point

- If you have a company with low shareholder loans, you may want to sell goodwill or quota to a related entity and create shareholders loan. This may provide a much lower rate than paying dividends or wages.
- If your business has a high value of goodwill and you see yourself selling out in the not too distant future, you might consider whether it makes sense to sell your goodwill to a new company, just to sell it back again to reset the “purchase price” of goodwill at today’s values. This will very likely create immediate tax consequences but may be worth it.
- Generally, it is easier to increase the reported income in the business to include sales to yourself. Although you can decrease the expenses if identifiable
- Keep good records to support your claim, including who you attended with and for what purpose.
- Ensure it says “lease” if you want lease treatment. It can be structured just like a loan with a $1 buyout and still qualify. If you buy out the lease then sell the equipment for a profit it may be classified as business income and there will be no capital gains. Be careful as to what the lease rates are. They are often much higher than financing costs.
- Be sure and claim 100% of such expenses if the work site qualifies as a “remote work location.”

Tax Law

Planning Point

- Certain manufacturing assets and technological equipment can be put into a separate class when acquired so that when disposed of, a tax savings can be realized if the selling price is lower than the tax value.
  - Budget 2015 provides a CCA rate of 50% on a declining-balance basis for machinery & equipment acquired after 2015 and before 2026 primarily for use in Canada for the manufacturing and processing of goods for sale or lease.
  - A business can pay individuals as subcontractors, saving you the cost of Canada Pension Plan (“CPP”) and Employment Insurance (“EI”) remittances.
  - Reasonable wages to your children and spouse are deductible and provide a means of income splitting.
  - A company can accrue a bonus at the end of a year to reduce corporate taxes. However, it will not be taxable to the employee until actually received. CRA requires that the amount be paid within 179 days of being declared.
- Consider putting these assets into these special classes if you anticipate they will depreciate faster than the CCA rate permitted.
  - Ensure manufacturing and processing machinery and equipment included in the appropriate CCA class to take advantage of this increased deduction. There are enhanced CCA claims for clean energy generator and electrical generator from waste heat.
  - There are specific criteria to consider if a worker is a subcontractor or an employee. Ultimately, the risk of any additional tax liability resulting from an incorrect assessment falls on you, so be sure before you start.
  - Wage expense must be supported by evidence of work performed, payment made (preferably by cheque). Shifting income from a taxpayer with high earnings can save up to $4,800 on every $10,000 moved.
  - If your company has a year end of July 31 (or later), the company gets a deduction in one year and the income to you is not taxed until the next year. This helps equalize personal income across years and avoids having income in the high tax brackets. Good legal documentation is necessary, including how fees were arrived at, details of services rendered and that the fees vary from year to year.

Tax Law

- You can deduct home office expenses if you use your home office exclusively to earn business income and it is used on a regular and continuous basis for meeting clients, customers or patients. A recent tax court case said telephone contact was sufficient for “meeting clients”.
- Home office expenses cannot be claimed in a situation where it will increase the loss of a business. However, unclaimed amounts can be carried forward.
- Where a website will have a relatively short useful life the costs can be expensed. However, if it is expected to have a long useful life it should be capitalized.
- Membership fees and dues to any club providing dining, recreational, or sporting facilities (i.e. golf or yacht club) are non-deductible. However, expenses of entertaining at the club may be deductible if there is a business purpose.
- CRA considers gym memberships paid on behalf of employees to be a taxable benefit, stating it is not sufficient that it increases employee morale, health, and efficiency at work.
- A business is able to deduct premiums to Private Health Services Plans (“PHSP”). The plan can be self-administered. If self-employed, it must be administered by a 3rd party.
- If you use your life insurance policy as collateral for a business loan, you can deduct a portion of the premiums paid.

Planning Point

- Maintain all home related receipts (hydro, gas, insurance, mortgage interest, property taxes, repairs, etc.). The percentage of these expenditures relating to the home office is often based on square footage of the office as compared with the remainder of the house, but can be on another reasonable basis if applicable.
- Always calculate the home office expense and keep a running balance.
- Ensure to breakout the regular maintenance fees of the website, as those items can be expensed.
- The standard rate for meals and entertainment is 50%. However, if the purpose of the expenses relate to a charity fundraiser, an office event, or a legitimate networking event, the expenses are then 100% deductible.
- Instead, you might try showing that your business benefits by securing customers from this membership or that good physical health is necessary for the employee to carry out their duties.
- It is often more beneficial to deduct these expenses in a business as they are 100% deductible. If claimed personally as a medical expense, they are subject to the 3% of income threshold.
- The allowable deduction is based on the cost of pure term life insurance with a face value equal to the loan balance.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- Dividends can be paid to one class of share, to the exclusion of another class.
- An individual can receive about $30,000 of dividends without having to pay tax, assuming no other sources of income.
- “Eligible” dividends are taxed at a significantly lower tax rate than regular dividends.
- An unpaid dividend can be reported on a separate tax return for a deceased taxpayer, effectively providing two low brackets.
- The federal personal exemption for 2016 is $11,474 (BC - $10,027), under which no income tax is paid on earnings.
- If you are in the construction business, you may be required to report all payments to subcontractors.
- If your business pays fees or amounts greater than $500 to subcontractors you may be required to file a T4A forms.

Planning Point

- Use different classes of shares for spouses, to allow for income splitting. Consider using a family trust to allocate income amongst family members.
- Consider both dividends and wages when structuring shareholder remuneration in any given year.
- If your company has active income in excess of the small business limit, you should review whether paying “eligible dividends” is more tax advantageous than management bonuses. Dividends are often useful when a shareholder is getting CPP or other disability payments as wages often reduce the disability payments (dividends do not).
- If you are of ill health or elderly, consider declaring a dividend in your company, but not paying it. This allows another $30,000 to the estate tax-free. Also a $10,000 death benefit can be deducted by the business & not be taxable to the employee.
- Pay reasonable wages to family members (especially children) to take advantage of these tax-free limits. The wages to kids decrease family income for Child Tax Benefit purposes and other social benefits.
- Keep good records and file the required T5018 summaries. The penalty is up to $2,500 for not filing.
- The required T4A’s must be filed on time with CRA. Failure to comply may result in interest and penalties.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law	Planning Point
□ If you sell business property (including shares of a company) and replace it with a similar business property, the tax on the initial sale can be deferred until the new property is sold.	➤ These Replacement Property rules are only available on business properties, not rental properties. Generally, there is a 1 year time restriction on the repurchase. Assets purchased in advance of the sale may sometimes be considered replacement assets.
□ The Lifetime Capital Gains Exemption is available on the sale of shares of qualifying companies, and the sale of qualifying farm/fishing property.	➤ There are very specific rules for property to qualify. You should review these rules a number of years ahead of a potential sale to allow for any necessary changes. Ensure you don't go offside on a “go forward” basis.
□ The Lifetime Capital Gains Exemption available on the sale of shares of qualifying companies is $824,176 in 2016 , and $1,000,000 the sale of qualifying farm/fishing property.	➤ Try and structure your financial affairs to be able to use this huge deduction. It has the possibility of saving an individual up to $240,000 of taxes. Try and multiply this deduction so all family members can benefit from it.
□ If the value of your business exceeds your capital gains exemption, consider sharing with other family members.	➤ An “estate freeze” can multiply the Capital Gains Exemption. A Family Trust has many benefits in this situation.
□ Businesses that spend money to create childcare spaces for their employees are eligible for a 25% investment tax credit up to $10,000 per child care space.	➤ Eligible expenditures include cost of equipment, landscaping, licensing, permits, architectural fees, and children's educational materials.
□ Interest on loans for capital withdrawals from partnerships or corporations is deductible.	➤ Consider obtaining financing within the business to pay off personal debt. In this way, the interest becomes deductible, where it was previously not.
□ Interest on money borrowed to earn business income is deductible. The purpose of a loan is what determines whether a loan is deductible.	➤ Always structure loans to be for a business purpose to make them deductible. If required, personal assets can still secure the loan. If structured properly a mortgage loan for your house can be tax deductible.

<input type="checkbox"/> If a debt is not repaid to creditors, there may be certain amounts included in your income.	➤ Ensure that the “forgiveness” of the debt is structured properly to avoid this income inclusion.
<input type="checkbox"/> CRA provides a tax credit to taxpayers who carry out qualifying scientific research and experimental development. Your business must do something that is a “technological advancement”.	➤ Apply if you think you could be eligible. Almost any area of “technological advancement” qualifies.
<input type="checkbox"/> There is a tax credit for salaries paid by a film or video company.	➤ Try to have as much of your salary shown as “production salary” as possible.
<input type="checkbox"/> A business in B.C. that employs a registered apprentice in most trades is eligible for a tax credit equal to 10% of salaries paid, to a maximum of $2,000 per year per apprentice.	➤ In order to claim this credit, you will require the appropriate trade code and apprenticeship contract # for your employee.
<input type="checkbox"/> If your business paid more in Employment Insurance in 2016 than in 2015, it may be eligible to receive a Hiring Credit up to $1,000.	➤ If eligible, CRA may automatically calculate your benefit deposit the amount to your payroll remittance account.
<input type="checkbox"/> Business losses created on or after 2005 can be carried forward for 20 years, except for those resulting from an ABIL.	➤ If your business has losses that are about to expire, it may be possible to renew these, so that they are available for another 20 years.
<input type="checkbox"/> Tools with a cost less than $500 are considered Class 12 additions for tax purposes, and are fully deductible in the year of purchase.	➤ It is important to ensure these are appropriately recorded, as the alternative is Class 8, which is a deduction at 20% per year.
<input type="checkbox"/> A 2% transitional tax applies to the sale of new residential building between April 1, 2013 and March 31, 2015.	➤ This tax does not apply if the building is less than 10% complete at April 1, 2013. The builder is required to collect the tax and cannot sell “tax included” as it must be disclosed separately.

Tax Law

- A business is permitted to deduct education costs for its employees, as long as they provide a benefit to the business.

Planning Point

- If you run a business and have children attending school, you may wish to have the business pay for the tuition and other costs. There is a risk that CRA would deem this to be a taxable benefit, unless it can be shown that the program provides skills that are applicable to the business.

IF YOU USE A VEHICLE FOR BUSINESS

- Expenses relating to a vehicle used for business purposes are deductible based on the percentage of kilometers driven for business purposes, which must be supported by a travel log. CRA auditors have recently stated that if a log is not available, they consider the vehicle to be 100% for personal use, and no deductions are available. CRA now allows a simplified log book based on a sample period of time.
  - Employers are permitted to deduct a traveling allowance paid to employees for vehicle use, which is non-taxable to the employees. For 2016, the rate in B.C. is $0.54/km for the first 5,000 kilometers and $0.48/km thereafter.
  - If an employee uses a business vehicle for personal use, the employer is required to calculate an “operating benefit” and a “standby charge” based on the number of personal kilometers and include these amounts on the employee’s T4. For 2016, the “operating benefit” rate is $0.26/km. The “standby charge” is 2/3 of the annual lease cost or 24% of the original cost.
- Allowable expenses include fuel, repairs, insurance, loan interest, lease payments, and depreciation. Receipts must be kept to support these amounts. If you are audited and do not have a log, you may be able to prepare a log after the fact based on timesheets, appointment books, or other means, and appeal the re-assessment. Also GPS log books are now available to help automate the log book process.
  - If actual vehicle expenses (insurance, repairs, fuel, loan interest, etc.) exceed this rate, actual costs can be claimed. However, receipts and a mileage log must be maintained to support the claim.
  - The “standby charge” is reduced if personal use is less than 50% and less than 20,000 km/year in total. Because the standby charge is so onerous, a vehicle should generally only be owned by a business if it is used more than 90% for business use and personal use will be less than 1,000 km/month.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- A vehicle defined as a “passenger vehicle” by CRA has special rules that reduce the allowable deductions for depreciation, lease costs, recapture and interest. The maximum cost for depreciation is $30,000 (which includes GST and PST), the maximum lease cost is $800/month, and the maximum interest is $300/month. If not determined to be a “passenger vehicle”, the full expenses are deductible.

- CRA regards travel to and from work as personal use. However, recent tax court cases have determined that a home office can be considered a work location. Therefore, travel between your home office and your other office maybe 100% deductible.

- An employer can loan money to an employee for the purchase of a car. These loans must bear interest at the prescribed rate of interest at time the loan is made. For the first quarter of 2016, the prescribed rate is 1%.

Planning Point

- A vehicle is not a “passenger vehicle” if:
  - It seats 3 or less people and is used more than 50% for business, or
  - It seats more than 3 people and is used more than 90% for business. This vehicle must be a van, pick-up or similar vehicle and used to transport goods, equipment, or passengers to earn income.These tests only apply in the year of acquisition. Acquire new vehicles just prior to the end of the year and ensure it meets the test for this short period.

- If you do not have a home office, consider traveling from your home to a client or supplier on the way to your office. This may make the trip 100% deductible.

- There is no requirement to increase this interest rate once the loan is made; therefore, this allows for a non-taxable benefit to the employee if the market interest rate exceeds the prescribed interest rate.

IF YOU ARE A FARMER

Tax Law

- There are a number of tax rules designed solely for farmers, many of which are very complex.

Planning Point

- See our separate booklet titled “LOOPHOLES FOR FARMERS” for a review of these specific tax planning points.

IF YOU HAVE INVESTMENTS

- All Canadian residents must report on Form 1135 “specified foreign assets” over $100,000. CRA is enforcing this requirement by assessing penalties of up to $2,500 for absent or late-filed forms. Corporations and Trusts that have investments must also report on form 1135.

- This includes shares in U.S. companies, even if purchased through a Canadian broker. It does not include active businesses, foreign property held by a Canadian mutual fund, or property held in an RRSP or personal use property such as vacation homes used personally

- In 1994, CRA permitted all taxpayers to make a special election to utilize up to $100,000 of their lifetime capital gains exemption. This may result in an increased cost base for that item, which may reduce the taxes when it is sold.

- If you are selling any investments (including property) that were owned prior to 1994, always refer back to your 1994 tax return to determine if there is an increase to the cost base.

- Capital gains are taxed at 50% as compared with income, which is taxed at 100%. However, capital losses are only deductible against capital gains as compared with income losses, which are deductible against all sources of income.

- If you have a gain on the disposition of property, try and have it classified as a capital property. However, if you have a loss, try and have it classified as a business loss. The main factors that CRA looks at include:
  - period of ownership
  - frequency of transactions
  - amount of improvements
  - reason for the sale
  - intention at time of purchase.

- If you sell a capital asset for a gain but don't get all the proceeds immediately, a “reserve” can be claimed to spread the gain over a maximum of 5 years.

- For transfer of property and sales of small business corporation shares this reserve can be extended to 10 years in some circumstances.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- If you sell an investment for a loss, you must wait 30 days before reacquiring the investment otherwise the loss is classified as a “superficial loss” and may be denied by CRA.
- Investment losses (both capital and non-capital) can be carried-back 3 years.
- Transfers and gifts of property to children, parents and siblings must be at fair market value. If a transaction is not at fair market value, CRA can adjust the transaction.
- If you have invested money into a business and don’t have any chance of getting it back, you can claim an “allowable business investment loss” (ABIL). An ABIL can be used to reduce income from other sources and is not restricted to capital gains.
- Venture Capital Corporations investments allow a 30% tax credit as well as a full RRSP deduction.
- Rental income from property held within a corporation is taxed at a higher rate than business property. However, CRA regards any property that employs more than 5 full time employees to be an active business, thereby eligible for the low rate tax.
- Investment income earned within a corporation is taxed at a rate slightly higher than the highest personal tax bracket.

Planning Point

- In some cases, the superficial loss rules can be used to shift capital losses to a spouse where they can be used.
- If your investments are suffering a decline in value, consider selling to recover taxes paid on gains in the previous 3 years.
- Double taxation can occur because CRA may only adjust one side of the sale. To avoid this, property can be gifted so CRA is forced to adjust both sides.
- If you have previously claimed a capital gains exemption, the ABIL may be reduced by that amount.
- If you invest $5,000 you can get a $4,000 tax refund after the 1st year (depending on your income) but beware of the RISK!
- If possible try and structure your rental as a business. Don’t forget to pay your spouse and children reasonable wages for work performed.
- A wage can be paid to shareholders to reduce the corporate tax, but it may reduce social benefits such as OAS, GIS, and child tax. Incorporating investment income can lead to good results with maximizing social benefits in many circumstances.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- Although investment income is initially taxed at a very high rate, it is possible to recover a portion of that tax by paying out dividends.
- If money is gifted to other family members to invest, the income generated may be “attributed” back to the “gifter”. However, if it is loaned at a “prescribed rate”, no attribution occurs.
- Interest on loans for investment purposes is tax deductible. Interest on loans for RRSPs and other registered plans is not deductible because the investment income is not taxed.
- Fees for investment counseling and portfolio management are deductible against investment income.
- Reinvested distributions from mutual funds are added to the cost base of the mutual fund.
- “Return of capital” distributions from mutual funds are reductions to the cost base of the mutual fund.
- There are many tax shelters that are designed to give immediate tax relief, including mineral and oil and gas flow through shares, Canadian films and venture capital plans.

Planning Point

- For every $3 of dividends paid, you can recover $1. However, be cautious of the effect it will have on your personal tax return. Dividend Refund will increase from 33 1/3% to 38 1/3% as investment income tax increases by 4% effective for tax years that end after 2015.
- It is very important that the interest is actually paid by January 31 of each year and T5s must be issued. If one year is missed, the entire plan is off side. There is no attribution of active business earnings.
- If possible, borrow for new investments and use old investments for personal acquisitions such as vehicles. It may also be possible to restructure existing debts so as to make it deductible.
- If your accountant is giving you investment advice, it may also qualify as a write-off.
- Be sure to add the distributions to the adjusted cost base to reduce the resulting gain.
- The cost base of a mutual fund can become negative, which is taxed as a capital gain in that year.
- You should only make an investment in a tax shelter if there is a reasonable expectation of profit. There is no point in losing $100 to save $50 of tax. Also make sure the tax shelter has the appropriate designation from CRA.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- If you're investing in marketable securities you can claim them as capital gains or business income. Capital gains are ½ the tax rate as business income. However, capital losses give you only ½ the benefit of a business loss.
- “Eligible” dividends are taxed at a significantly lower tax rate than regular dividends.
- Capital losses can be carried forward indefinitely.
- Mutual fund distributions are taxable when received.
- Taxpayers can register for a Tax-Free Savings Account (“TFSA”). This is not a tax deduction like an RRSP. However, both the investment growth and the withdrawal are tax-free. Shares of privately held companies where you own less than 10% can be put into a TFSA. The contribution limit for 2015 was $10,000 but will decrease to $5,500 for 2016. You can “catch up” on prior years amounts.
- If you sell investments within a corporation and it results in a capital gain, only half of the gain is taxable. The non-taxable portion of the gain goes in to a capital dividend account (“CDA”).

Planning Point

- CRA permits a taxpayer to file an election treating all future dispositions of marketable securities as capital in nature. This is irrevocable and applies to all future years. The election is not available if you are a registered stock broker.
- Most dividends from Canadian public companies may be “eligible dividends”. These may be reported separately on your T5 that is received from these companies.
- To take advantage of capital losses carrying forward, you should consider selling some of your well performing securities to trigger a gain. You can then repurchase those assets if they continue to meet your investment objectives.
- Most funds distribute in late December. If you purchase a fund in early December, you may pay tax on those distributed earnings even though they were earned by someone else.
- The contribution limit is indexed each year. You might consider using this account for high-risk investments to increase the amount of tax saving if the investment does well. If you withdraw from the TFSA that amount can be replaced BUT the replacement must be done in the year following the withdrawal. Beware of TFSA investments doing poorly as they may limit future contributions.
- A shareholder can apply to withdraw this amount from the company on a tax free basis. Capital dividends are tax free to the recipient and a great way to increase shareholders loan.

Tax Law

Planning Point

- Life insurance policies accumulate free of tax and are not subject to tax on death.
  - If you own property in the U.S., you may have to include any gain on its sale on your Canadian tax return. You may also have to file a U.S. tax return and pay taxes in the U.S.
- You can borrow against this policy to create cash flow during your lifetime.
  - U.S. taxation is very different from Canadian taxation and requires specialized advice. If you do pay U.S. taxes, you may be eligible for a Foreign Tax Credit on your Canadian return.

IF YOU OWN RRSPS/RESPS/RDSPS

- RRSPs, RESPs, RDSPs and RPPs allow investments to grow on a tax-free basis until withdrawn from the plan. In BC it appears Registered Plans are creditor proof.
  - RRSP contributions made in the first 60 days of the year are deductible in that year or the preceding year. Unused deduction room can be carried forward for use in subsequent years.
  - An RRSP purchase results in a tax reduction, giving a guaranteed rate of return between 20% and 46% in the first year, based on your tax bracket.
  - RRSP contribution room is calculated as 18% of your earned income in the previous year. This is aggregated over your lifetime.
  - Effective 2016, the maximum RRSP contribution limit has been increased to $25,370. To ensure the maximum contribution limit in 2016, you will need income of approximately $140,945 in 2015.
- Maximize contributions to registered plans before investing in non-registered investments. Individual Pension Plans offer high income tax payers additional shelters of taxable income.
  - If you are at low rates of tax one year and high rates the next year, it is better to deduct the RRSP in the high income year. It can still be purchased in the low-income year, just don't deduct it.
  - When the RRSP is withdrawn, you may pay tax, however, you may likely be in a lower tax bracket so may have saved tax. Be cautious of making RRSP contributions when you expect to retire at a higher tax bracket as you may end up paying more tax in the long run.
  - If a child has any earned income, a tax return should be filed even if non-taxable, if only to increase future RRSP contribution room.
  - Your ability to contribute to an RRSP is based on earned income. Interest, investment and property income do not qualify as earned income. To increase these earnings, you might consider moving your investments to a corporation and paying yourself a wage.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- You can withdraw RRSPs, however, the issuer is required to withhold tax at the following rates:

$5,000 or less	10%
$5,000 - $15,000	20%
over $15,000	30%
- The maximum age at which you can contribute to an RRSP is 71.
- If you have not owned a residence in the last 4 years, you can use the Home Buyers Plan (“HBP”) to withdraw $25,000 from your RRSPs to buy the home without paying the tax on the RRSP withdrawal.
- Using the Lifelong Learning Plan (“LLP”), an individual can withdraw up to $10,000 per year over 4 years, to a maximum of $20,000, from an RRSP on a tax-free basis to fund their education.
- A taxpayer can contribute to a spousal RRSP. Provided the spouse waits for 3 years from the date of the last contribution to withdraw from the spousal RRSP, the resulting income is taxed in the spouse’s hands.
- If you don’t have sufficient cash for your RRSP purchase, you can borrow from the bank to make your RRSP contribution. Interest on the loan is not deductible.
- The year in which you must “mature” your RRSP into a RRIF is the year you turn 71. The minimum amount that annuitants are required to withdraw from a RRIF in 2015 and subsequent taxation years has been lowered from approximately 7% to 5%.

Planning Point

- Make several separate withdrawals to lessen the withholding rate. Don’t draw out RRSP in a high-income year as it is taxed at the high tax rate in that year. When you file your return, the actual tax payable from the RRSP cash out will be determined.
- If you are 71 or older you can still contribute a spousal RRSP if your spouse is under 71.
- You have to repay the RRSP (or include the withdrawal in income) over a 15 year period. If you are disabled or are the supporting person of a disabled person you can use the HBP even if you have previously used it or you currently own a home.
- The amount withdrawn must be repaid (or claimed in income) over a 10-year period.
- If a spousal RRSP is purchased on December 31 and is withdrawn on January 1st of the second following year, the spouse can, in effect, withdraw the spousal RRSP in a 2-year period.
- Such a transaction is usually only beneficial if the loan can be repaid within a year or if you are expecting lower taxable income in a future year.
- Be sure not to miss the deadline otherwise all accumulated funds in your RRSP may be added to your taxable income. You can base the withdrawals out of the RRIF on the younger spouse’s age.

- You may be eligible to receive a tax credit up to $2,000 on your pension income (OAS and CPP not eligible).
- A retiring allowance can be rolled directly into an RRSP on a tax-free basis.
- You can contribute certain qualifying investments, such as shares and mortgages, into your RRSP. Shares of your own company in certain conditions (less than 10% ownership) are qualified property for RRSP contributions.
- You can convert some of your RRSPs into a non-RRSP investment by using the RRSP meltdown strategy.
- The lifetime limit for contributions into a RESP has been increased to $50,000. Generally, RESPs can now be transferred between siblings without penalties.
- The loss in value of RRSPs or RRIFs after the death of a taxpayer can be applied against the deemed income inclusion reported on final tax return.

Planning Point

- For individuals that do not have a pension and are 65, you should consider transferring funds from your RRSPs to a RRIF to benefit from this credit.
- You don't need any RRSP contribution room to do this.
- You may have a capital gain if the investment has gone up in value. However, a capital loss is denied if the investment has gone down, so you are better to sell the investment at a loss and put cash into your plans. Severe penalties exist for putting ineligible investments in RRSPs.
- In this strategy, you borrow funds to invest in a non-registered investment. RRSPs are then cashed in and the interest expense may help offset the RRSP income.
- To maximize the government top-up, you must contribute $2,500/year. Spreading out a lump-sum payment is therefore beneficial. There are supplementary government grant programs which match some RESP contributions. These are the Canada Learning Bond and the Canada Education Savings Grant.
- The RRSP or RRIF must be wound up by December 31st of the year following the year of death.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- In the case of a deceased person, the limit on charitable donations is increased from 75% to 100% of net income. Any unused donations can be carried back to the prior year or used by a spouse.
- It is generally more advantageous to make donations personally rather than through a corporation due to significantly higher personal tax rates.
- Contributions to a registered political party or an officially nominated candidate result in a tax credit of 75% for the first $400; 50% for the next $350; and 33 1/3% for the next $525. There is no credit for contributions beyond $1,275.

Planning Point

- You can now name a charity as a beneficiary of a life insurance policy or RRSP as part of your estate planning to reduce taxes on death.
- Ensure that donations are paid by personal funds and that the donation receipt is in your personal name.
- The tax savings from political contributions exceeds that of charitable donations, but is more limited in the amount you can claim. Consider a mixture of both to maximize your tax return and your personal objectives.

IF YOU OWN A HOME

- CRA provides for a taxpayer to sell their home on a tax-free basis using the “principal residence exemption”. The principal residence exemption is generally limited to the home and the ½ hectare (1.2 acres) it is situated on.
  - Tax court decisions have allowed significantly more than the standard ½ hectare of land for the principal residence. If you have more than ½ hectare, talk to our office to see what needs to be done to qualify. As a senior you can opt to postpone property tax payments to when you sell your house.
- You can only claim the principal residence exemption on 1 house per family per year. If you have more than one residence (i.e. a home and a cottage), you can designate different homes as your principal residence for different periods. You do not need to live in a residence on a continuous basis over the year. CRA only requires that it was “ordinarily inhabited” for a period each year.
  - Prior to January 1, 1982 you and your spouse could each own a principal residence (“PR”). Designate the residence with the greatest increase in value as the PR to minimize the taxes. When acquiring a second property, obtain a current valuation of the first property as well to aid in the above determination. Keep a record of the adjusted cost base of each property in order to be able to calculate the gain.
- If you leave your house on a temporary basis, you can maintain its principal residence status for a period of 4 years after you have left it.
  - During the years that you rent your principal residence, you may deduct various costs and expenses but not capital cost allowance.

Tax Law

- If you own a rental property and subsequently move into this property, you can elect to have it treated as your principal residence.
- A First-Time Home Buyer’s Tax Credit of $5,000 is available for first time home buyers who acquire a home after January 27, 2009. This saves $750 on your tax return.
- The property value, at which the BC Home Owner Grant is phased-out, has been increased to $1,200,000 for 2016.
- For property transfer tax purposes, the threshold for eligible residential property under the First Time Home Buyers' Program is $475,000. The partial exemption applies to homes valued between $475,000 and $500,000.
- If you rent part of your house out or use it for business purposes, you can still claim principal residence on the whole house.

Planning Point

- You cannot have rented for more than 4 years, and cannot have claimed CCA during this period.
- This credit is to anyone who has not owned a home in the last 4 years. If you are disabled, you do not have to meet the 4 year test.
- For properties assessed above the threshold, the grant is reduced by $5 for every $1,000 of assessed value in excess of the threshold.
- This allows eligible first time home buyers to save up to $7,500 in property transfer tax on the purchase of their home. To qualify, you must have never owned an interest in a principal residence anywhere in the world at any time.
- Be sure and claim less than 40% of common expenses, don't make structural changes and don't claim CCA.

IF YOU HAVE (HAD) A SPOUSE

- If you are legally married (or living common law) you are able to claim a tax credit for a low-income spouse.
  - A CPP retirement benefit can be split with your spouse.
- Common-law partners cohabitating for a 12-month period, or longer, are subject to the same rules as legally married spouses. However, if you are separated for more than a 90 day period during the year then you may not be considered common-law for tax purposes or can be considered to be separated (for legally married couples).
  - If your tax rate is higher than your spouse's, contact CRA to have the CPP benefit split to reduce overall family taxes.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law	Planning Point
□ Dividends can be reported on a spouse's tax return in certain circumstances.	➤ Calculate whether it's best for you or your spouse to report the dividends.
□ Several credits can be transferred to a spouse if certain conditions are met.	➤ These credits include: the pension amount, age amount, disability amount, amount for children or tuition.
□ A taxpayer is able to transfer up to 50% of their pension income to their spouse.	➤ At the very least, $2,000 of pension income should be reported by both spouses to avoid wasting the pension income tax credit.
□ Each spouse is taxed on his/her own income in Canada. Less tax is paid if both spouse's income is equal as opposed to one spouse having the bulk of the income.	➤ Have the higher income spouse pay for all living expenses and have the lower income spouse put their earnings into investments.
□ Transfers of property to a trust in favor of lower income spouses can provide good income splitting opportunities. Trusts lose their ability to use graduated tax rates after 36 months.	➤ A spousal trust established on death allows for utilization of an additional low tax bracket. However, the 36 month period limits the total tax savings. This should be considered before setting up a spousal trust.
□ Each family is allowed one principal residence exemption, but each separated person is allowed his or her own principal residence exemption.	➤ When the family owns more than one property at time of separation, ordinarily it makes sense to give each spouse one property.
□ After a marriage breakdown, attribution rules no longer apply. All RRSPs and RRIFs can usually be transferred to your ex-spouse without any immediate tax. Spousal RRSPs can be cashed in without adverse tax consequences to the contributing spouse.	➤ In a marriage breakdown situation, try and work with your ex-spouse in order to reduce the overall tax bite of RRSPs and RRIFs. Ensure that CRA does not determine that part of the RRSP/RRIF split is in lieu of child support. If they do, that amount may be taxable.
□ Child support payments based on post May 1, 1997 settlement agreements are not deductible to the payor and are not included in the recipient's income.	➤ Where the payor and recipient jointly elect with CRA they can use the new rules even if their agreement was effective before May 1, 1997.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- Alimony and spousal maintenance payments are deductible to the payor and taxable to the recipient.
- Legal fees to collect spousal support have been allowed as a tax deduction by recent tax courts. Legal costs of child support issues have also been deductible.

Planning Point

- Alimony agreements can result in the shifting of income from a higher income to a lower income spouse resulting in an overall tax saving.
- Make sure that your lawyer clearly breaks out these costs in their invoices so they can be deducted.

IF YOU HAVE CHILDREN

- The Family Tax Cut (“FTC”), which came into effect for in 2014 has been eliminated for 2016 and future years.
  - Effective 2014 and 2015 only, couples with children under the age of 18 could “notionally” split income under the FTC, resulting in a tax reduction of up to $2,000.
- The Universal Child Care Benefit was enhanced in 2015, following the elimination of the child tax credit. The monthly amount for children under 6 was increased from $100 to $160.
  - This amount is taxable to the lower income spouse or, for a single parent, to the child (optional). The change was effective January 1, 2015, but increased payments were not available until July 2015. Liberals propose that Canada Child Benefit will replace Universal Child Care Benefit, Child Tax Benefit & National Child Benefit Supplement and will begin July 1, 2016.
- The B.C. Early Childhood Tax Benefit, provides a monthly payment of $55 for each child under the age of six.
  - Family net income exceeding $100,000 will grind the benefit paid, and the benefit will be completely eliminated when family net income reaches $150,000.
- If you are single, but support a family member (such as a child) in your home, you are eligible to claim the eligible dependent tax credit.
  - This credit gives you the same benefit as having a low-income spouse. This can also benefit spouses that have separated during the year and have had no support from their spouse during the separation.

“LOOPHOLES”

Tax Law

- The maximum amount of the childcare expense deduction is $8,000 for each child under 7 and $5,000 for each child between 7 and 17. In cases where a child of any age claims the disability tax credit, the maximum is $11,000.
- If your children are grown and have their own minor children, consider bequeathing funds in your will to your grandchildren in a trust.
- RRSPs and RRIFs can now be left to financially dependent children and grandchildren or to their RDSP.
- CRA permits Child Tax Benefit payments and Universal Child Care payments to be held in a child’s name without attribution of the income back to the parents. The Child Tax Benefit is phased out starting at $26,021.
- You are allowed to sell shares of a small business corporation to your children. Future growth in the company may then be taxed in the hands of the children but you can still control the company until your death.
- The government provides a grant of up to $500 per year based on contributions into a Registered Education Savings Plan (“RESP”). If the child does not go to post-secondary school, up to $50,000 of the RESP can be transferred to your RRSP.
- The BC Training and Education Savings Grant BC provides a grant of $1,200 per child born after January 1, 2007.

Planning Point

- Be sure to claim all childcare expenses including babysitters, boarding schools, summer camps, sports camps and wages to other children 18 or older for looking after your children 16 or younger.
- On your death, the funds will go in trusts with your children as trustees and the grandchildren as beneficiaries. The grandchildren’s income will be taxed in the child’s name.
- Doing so may eliminate any taxes that would otherwise be payable when cashing-in the RRSPs or RRIFs.
- Generally, it is best to purchase RRSPs or RESPs with these funds as you may receive a much larger initial return on your investment. If you have control over your family income, pay heed to these new thresholds!
- This “estate freeze” is a very effective way of transferring future income and capital gains to children.
- If possible, ensure you contribute at least $2,500 to each child’s RESP to capitalize on the government grant. The effective return on this investment is 20%. The maximum grant paid by the government is $1,000 per year, provided there is room carrying forward.
- No matching or additional contributions are required. However, you need to open an RESP account at your bank and apply.

- The Child Disability Benefit is $2,630/child for each child eligible for the Disability Tax Credit (“DTC”). This is in addition to the regular DTC.

Planning Point

- Consider purchasing a second residence in your adult child’s name. A family trust may be best since you may not want your child owning the property directly for potential creditors/matrimonial reasons.

IF YOU ARE A SENIOR

- The OAS age for eligibility has risen from 65 to 67. The Liberal party has indicated that they will restore the eligibility age for OAS to 65.
- You may have the option to defer receiving your OAS pension for up to 5 years. In exchange, you may receive a higher monthly amount (0.6% every month delayed to a maximum of 36% at age 70).
- The current plan for the eligibility to be at 67 years of age affects anyone born on April 1, 1958 or later.
- Based on your family history, if you think you may live longer than the average you might want to consider deferring you OAS to benefit from higher monthly payments. Also, if you are in a high tax bracket and your OAS may be clawed back then you should consider deferring your OAS.

- “Eligible” dividends are taxed at a significantly lower tax rate than regular dividends.
- If you stayed home to care for children born after 1958, you may be eligible to have a credit applied to your CPP contributions in lieu of this time spent away from the work force.

Planning Point

- Be sure to keep receipts as they may be required by CRA.
- If you are over 65, consider converting RRSP funds into a RRIF or term deposits into qualifying annuities. This may permit you to receive $2,000 of income from these investments on a tax-free basis.
- If this applies to your situation and you require further assistance please contact our office.

IF YOU CARE FOR YOUR PARENTS

Tax Law

Planning Point

- If you are single, but support a family member (such as a parent) in your home, you are eligible to claim the equivalent to spouse tax credit. Also if the parents are disabled, you can transfer the disability tax certificate to yourself.
  - If you have a dependent with an impairment in physical and or mental functions you may be eligible to claim an additional tax credit for the Family Caregiver Amount.
- You may also be eligible to claim the caregiver tax credit if you are looking after a parent over 65 or a dependent relative who has a mental or physical infirmity.
  - An additional credit of $2,093 may be claimed for the Family Caregiver Amount for an infirm dependent (including a spouse or an eligible dependent). CRA may ask for a statement from the doctor to verify when the impairment began and the expected duration.

IF YOU ARE PAYING MEDICAL EXPENSES

- Medical expenses paid over 3% of your net income or above the annual threshold entitle you to a tax credit. Some allowable expenditures include:
    - payments to doctors, dentists, chiropractor, etc.
    - glasses, hearing aids, dentures
    - prescription drugs
    - premiums paid for extended medical or dental plans
    - equipment purchases and renovations for handicapped access of residence
    - institutional care or home care
    - travel expenses to obtain medical care not available in your area
    - medical services
    - cosmetic surgery is NOT a medical expense in most cases.
- Claim medical expenses on the lower income spouse's return to decrease the level of the 3% threshold.
  - Travel expenses can be calculated using the simplified method, meaning CRA permits a standard mileage and meal allowance for medical trips. However, claims for lodging, parking, etc., must be supported by receipts.
  - You may deduct amounts paid for you, your spouse, dependent children, and any other family member that you support (i.e. parent or grandparent).

- ❑ Be sure and claim all medical expenses relating to your well-being, including travel expenses and construction expenses on your home for enabling better access. This includes moving expenses of up to $2,000 and the purchase of a vehicle modified for a disabled person of up to $5,000.
- ❑ A disability tax credit is available if you have a prolonged mental or physical impairment that has been certified by a medical professional. Unused disability credit can be transferred to related persons.

Planning Point

- You may need receipts to document this claim. The refundable medical expense supplement can get you up to $1,172 back from CRA. Consider splitting medical expenses with a spouse, as each of them are eligible for the refundable credit.
- Keep good records of all your medical expenses and be sure they get deducted.
- The tax savings that results from claiming the disability tax credit are substantial. If there is any possibility that you may qualify, you should walk through the process of making this claim.
- If you have a relative with little income the disability tax credit could be transferred to you, saving approximately $1,500 in taxes per year.

IF YOU ARE GOING TO SCHOOL

- ❑ All scholarships and bursaries (elementary, secondary, and post-secondary) are non-taxable if you have a T2202 in the current or prior year.
- If you run a business and have children attending school, you may wish to offer a scholarship to your child. This would be deductible to the business and non-taxable to your child. As there is a risk that CRA would deem this to be a taxable benefit to yourself, but this is reduced if the scholarship is available to all employees and selection is based on a defined set of criteria.
